

Insulin pumps have come a long way.

Dr. Arnold Kadish devised the first insulin pump in the early 1960s. It was worn on the back and was roughly the size of a Marine backpack. Source: Medscape.

State health policy hasn't.

Ever since The Rehabilitation Act of 1973,

families in Illinois have waited for coherent, enforceable state policy on diabetes care at school. Federal lawsuits, civil rights complaints and more than thirty years have gone by and still, not one proposal from the state board of education or any of the state's education associations. But we've got a plan. And it's vetted by nurses and doctors expert in the care of diabetes.

The Care of Students with Diabetes Act

Visit www.TheCareAct.com | Contact Suzanne Elder at 773-718-2822